

Fact and Fiction: Forms of Writing

Naeem Inayatullah and Sorayya Khan

Thursday, October 25
11:30 am - 1:30 pm
764 York Research Tower

This seminar reflects on the continuity that manifests across the various forms and modalities of writing, on the ways in which the themes that animate our work are replicated throughout our careers and commitments, and on the question of how various forms of writing allow us to access and orbit these themes in different ways. The speakers will facilitate a discussion of the rupture or 'wound' that catalyzes and animates our writing, whether academic, creative, poetic, or autoethnographic/biographic.

Naeem Inayatullah is Professor of Political Science at Ithaca College. He is the editor of Autobiographical International Relations: I/IR, (Routledge, 2010)

Sorayya Khan is a novelist and the author of Noor and Five Queen's Road.

York University
7th Floor
York Research Tower
4700 Keele Street
Toronto, ON
M3J 1P3
416-736-5156 ph
416-650-8069 fax
www.yorku.ca/yciss

